

BLOWJOB

Introduction

This game is very easy to set up and play, and it works for any amount of players. Plus, you'll be able to critique the BLOWJOB of your fellow players.

Objective

Practice your blowing technique among friends.

Players and Cards

Play with any amount of player (the more, the merrier). Use CUSSCARDS™ European Edition 52 card deck, plus 1 Joker. You will also need an empty opened beer bottle.

Play

Stack the entire loosely packed deck, face down on top of the bottle, and get all players in a circle around it.

The first player leans in closely and blows onto the deck at whatever intensity they wish until at least one card is blown off. The players examine the fallen card(s). If they are a 2 through 10, nothing happens and the turn passes to the next blower. But if the card(s) is a J, Q, K, A, the blower must drink accordingly: One second for a jack, two for a queen, three for a king and four for an ace. If the player has blown more than one J, Q, K, or A off of the bottle, the player must add the two numbers together. For example, if there is a queen and a king, the player drinks for five seconds.

If a J, Q, K, or A is blown, a Cuss Play also occurs:

The blower must take the topmost card from the bottle. Without letting the other players see the card, the blower must act out the swear or slang word(s) on the card (without using words...sounds are OK). The first player to guess the correct slang or swear on the blower's card is safe from drinking. All other players must take a single drink.

The game continues until the last card is blown off the bottle. When this happens, the final blower is forced to down the rest of whatever they are drinking and must gather up all the cards, restack them on the bottle for a new game (if the final card is an J, Q, K or A, all players who lose the Cuss Play must also down the rest of their drinks). The blower that reveals the Joker at any time during the game is tasked with getting the final blower a new drink.

PLAY DIRTY. NO CHEATING.
www.CUSSCARDS.com